HOW THE MATERIAL IS MADE READY.

WILL THE COMPANY BE ENJOINED !- THE INDEM-NITY BOND.

The Subway Commission received a letter yestertay from the connect of the North American Underground Telegraph and Electric Company stating that the specifications for the subways were an infringement upon its patents and that it was going to enjoin such infringement. So many letters of this kind have been received that it has become an old story and the commissioners pay little attention to them. It was reported yesterday that this company intends to get an injunction to stop the work as soon as it begins on Monday for the purpose of forcing the consolidated company to adopt the Johnstone patents, which it controls, instead of Mr. Dorsett's. One of the commissioners said yesterday that he did not believe the company or any one else would attempt such a thing. The statement that the commission had not received the $500,000 indemnity bond from the Construction Company is not true. The engrossed bond has not been delivered, but the provisional one is now in the hands of the commissioners. Mr. Flower says that one of the bondsmen alone is worth five times
the amount of the bond and that only one of those who originally signed it will be dropped.
"The fact," he continued, "that the contractor who has the work is willing to begin in a dozen places at the same time is pretty good evidence that he considers the company all right and able to pay its bills."

places at the same time is pretty good evidence that he considers the company all right and able to pay its bills."

The Dornett people say that they will be able to furnish the Construction Company 560 feet of conduits day from this time forth. They got their twelve-duct moulds in operation yesterday, but will probably not cast any sections until next week. The method of making the conduits is simple. The ingredients of the concrete are coal tar, pitch and sand. After being carefully screened the sand is placed in an inclined cylinder three feet in diameter and eighteen feet long. Underneath this are furnaces. As the sand runs down this is is thoroughly dried before reaching the bottom and out of which it passes into a pit. From this it is taken to the top of the factory by a bucket slevator and carried to the different hoppers by a screw convevor. These hoppers diacharse by means of a valve into the mixing pans below them. The pitch is melted in a large stoam covered iron tank, about eight feet long through which a shaft runs with aims projecting from it for the purpose of stirring the material as it melts. There are openings in these tanks running into the mixing pans. The thorough stirring and mixing of the asphaltum, and and chemicals are effected by heavy steam revolving rakes. When at the proper temperature and consistency a requisite amount of the material is fed into a pan about three inches high, so constructed that the bottom can be withdrawn when directly over the mould. The material thus released drops into the mould in an even layer.

The machinery for casting consists of an iron material thus released drops into the mould in an even layer.

The machinery for casting consists of an iron frame in two sections in which is set a series of steel pins varying in number according to the number of holes required in the conduit. After the mass of concrete has set sufficiently the pins are drawn out and the mould is set in a tank of running water to cool. When cooled it is taken out, finished, tested and is then ready for putting underground. The full daily capacity of the works is now between $3,000 and 4,000 feet of six duct conduit, such as is now being made for Broolykn. The manholes are four feet six inches long, three feet wide inside and as deep as may be required, being built up of concrete moulded in sections and cemented together with the same material. The top of the manhole consists of a cast iron collar sixteen inches deep.

ADDITION TO THE MUSEUM BUILDING. GENERAL DI CESNOLA SAYS THAT MONEY GIFTS ARE WANTING FOR THE NEW ROOMS.

After a delay of nearly three years the work on the addition to the Metropolitan Museum of Art will begin next Monday. The contracts for the new building were awarded by the Park Department two weeks ago, and the contractors have now made all arrangements to enable them to push forward the work until cold weather interrupts it. The foundation was completed more than a year ago. The excavation required a great deal of blasting. Now the work will proceed directly from the foundation walls, and it is expected that in a year from this fall the annex will be ready for occupation. The cost of the entire work will be about $325,000. An act was passed by the Legislature three years ago appropriating the money for the building and the foundation was then begun. The appropriation was to be raised by an issue of bonds, but a subsequent act of the Legislature prevented the city from Issuing more bonds at that time, so that the appropriation came to naught until another bill passed by the Legislature under mandatory on the partof the city muthorities to raise the money from the tax levy. Bids were advertised for in July, but when they were opened it was found that the lowest bid exceeded by several thousand dollars the appropriation for the building. The plans were then modified by changing some of the material to be used and bids were again advertised for. The result was a reduction of about $30,000 in the cost of the work.

General di Cesnola, the director of the museum,

General di Cesnola the director of the museum, in speaking of the plans for the addition and the need of this additional room, said yesterday that there was at the present time forthcoming a sufficient number of works of arts at the disposition of the museum to fill nearly the entire addition. These cannot be accommodated in the present building, which is already crowded. He continued the continued of the collections and bequeets, and collections are now promised to it in the future when the means are at hand for providing for them that will aggregate over $7,000,000. providing for them that will aggregate over $7,000,000. Among these is the bequest of General Van Alen, who died recently on his return voyage from Europe. He gives conditionally about $1,000,000 to the Museum. Other bequests will come from wealthy residents of New-York and the vicinity who are interested in the development of art in this country.

HEAVY SHIPMENT OF COTTON GOODS.

HEAVY SHIPMENT OF COTTON GOODS.

The new special freight rates on cotton piece goods which went into effect on Thursday, have made things lively in the dry-goods district. For weeks previous to the reduction no heavy shipments of goods affected by the change were made except of stock that was immediately required by the retail merchants. As a result of this, orders accumulated and for the last two days the shipping forces of nearly all the large houses have been working until far into the night. This agreement between the trunk lines and the merchants committee does not affect any existing freight contracts between the roads and the shippers, nor does it require that this special rate of 50 cents per hundred pounds must be paid, if for any cause railroad rates should drop below this tariff. The special rate applies only to the firms that sign the agreement to abide by the conditions of the reduction imposed by the railroad companies. About thirty of the principal houses have already signed, including such firms as H. B. Claffin & Co., Left, Weiler & Co., and Dunham, Buckley & Co. It is expected that all the rest will sign in a few days as none of the conditions are considered objectionable by the merchants.

ALDERMEN WHO SHOULD BE FINED. ALDERMEN WHO SHOULD BE FINED.

Aldermen Quinn, Cavanagh, Corcoran, Ryan and O'Neil, in addition to the fugitive De Lacey, were absent from the meeting of the Board of Aldermen yesterday, and so the tax levy, which ought to have been confirmed, could not be acted upon. The report of the Finance Committee fixing the rate for the current year was received, but the law requires that three-fourths of the Board must vote in favor of it. One more member would have been enough. The clerk was sent out to hunt up an Alderman or two and President Nooney said that all the members of the Board were told to attend, and that all those absent were liable to a fine of $100. He thought the law in this respect should be carried out. The clerk returned saying that he couldn't find a single Alderman and the Board adjourned until Tuesday at 10 a. m.

RAID ON AN OPIUM "JOINT"

Detective Price with several policemen from the Twenty-ninth Precinct at 2 a. in. yesterday made a raid on the opium "joint" at No. 104 West Thirty-direct, and captured two Chinamen and four Caucasian visitors. Two of the latter were women, one of whom tried to escape by jumping out of the window. She was secized in time. The prisoners were alignraigned at Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday morning, but as there was no evidence to show that the place was disorderly, or that opium had been sold to be smoked on the premises, Justice Ford discharged them. Detective Price was instructed to return the opium amoking apparatus to the owners, but the canny Celestials were not to be caught in that way. They said they didn't know who ewned the thing, and so the property remained in the custody of the clerk.

The race meeting at Saratoga closes to-day.

There has been racing here every week day, with one exception, for over a month, and the management claims to be perfectly satisfied with the financial result. Some good and some exceptionally bad races have taken place, but on the whole the outcome of the meeting has been satisfactory to all interested. The races, however, have been continued until after it became necessary for the owners who wished their horses to contend for the rich prizes offered by the Coney Island and Brooklyn Jockey Ciubs to remove their animals to the tracks by the sea. This has severely interiered both with the class and number of the entries for the closing days. Two stake races are to be run for to-day, but in both cases Bones man, was chosen captain of the crew for next the first race is considered the captain of the crew for next the field school, of Buffalo, captain of the fine.
